A multitude of respected intelligence officials and heads of state have both publicly and privately asserted that Osama has been dead for years

A multitude of different inside sources both publicly and privately, including one individual who personally worked with Bin Laden at one time, told us directly that Osama's dead corpse has been on ice for nearly a decade and that his "death" would only be announced at the most politically expedient time.

That time has now come with a years-old fake picture being presented ^[2] as the only evidence of his alleged killing yesterday, while Bin Laden's body has been hastily dumped into the sea ^[3] to prevent anyone from finding out when he actually died.

In April 2002, over nine years ago, Council on Foreign Relations member Steve R. Pieczenik, who served as Deputy Assistant Secretary of State under Henry Kissinger, Cyrus Vance, and James Baker, told the Alex Jones Show that Bin Laden had already been "dead for months".

Pieczenik would be in a position to know such information, having worked directly with Bin Laden when the US was funding and arming the terror leader in an attempt to drive the Soviets out of Afghanistan in the late 70's and early 80's (a documented historical fact that talking heads in the corporate media are actually denying today in light of developments).

"I worked with Osama bin Laden in '78, '81," Pieczenik told Jones, adding that he later turned terrorist hunter during subsequent administrations.

"I found out through my sources that he had had kidney disease. And as a physician, I knew that he had to have two dialysis machines and he was dying," Pieczenik told Jones during the April 24, 2002 interview ^[4].

"And you could see those in those films, those made-up photos that they were sending us out of nowhere. I mean, suddenly, we would see a video of bin Laden today and then out of nowhere, they said oh it was sent to us anonymously, meaning that someone in the government, our government, was trying to keep up the morale on our side and say oh we still have to chase this guy when, in fact, he's been dead for months," added Pieczenik.

Pieczenik then stated that the video tape of a fat Bin Laden look alike "taking responsibility" for 9/11 that was released in December 2001 was "such a hoax" designed to "manipulate" people in the emotional aftermath of 9/11.

The subsequent war in Afghanistan that followed 9/11 was orchestrated "With the agreement of the bin Laden family, knowing fully well that he would die," said Pieczenik. "And I think that Musharraf, the President of Pakistan, spilled the beans by accident three months ago when he said that bin Laden was dead because his kidney dialysis machines were destroyed in East Afghanistan."

In addition to Pieczenik, as we reported in August 2002 ^[5], Alex Jones was separately told by a high level Republican source that Bin Laden was dead and that his body was being kept "on ice" until Osama's death could be announced at the most "politically expedient" time.

When Jones asked the source if his claim was mere speculation or whether it was actually true, the source re-iterated the fact that he was being deadly serious and that Bin Laden's corpse was "physically on ice" waiting to be rolled out for public consumption at the most opportune moment.

Many expected that moment to be right before the 2004 election, but after Democrats began speculating about the possibility,

Republicans settled instead for a fake Osama video tape [6] that was released on the eve of the election and, according to both George W. Bush and John Kerry, was the deciding factor in a closely-fought contest. Veteran news reader Walter Cronkite labeled the entire farce a Karl Rove-orchestrated "set-up".

In addition to these sources, a deluge of other heads of state as well as intelligence agency professionals have gone on record over the past nine years to state their belief that Bin Laden was likely dead, after it became clear that the Al-Qaeda leader's health was in severe decline as a result of kidney disease at the end of 2001. These include;

- Former CIA officer and hugely respected intelligence & foreign policy expert Robert Baer, who in 2008 when asked about Bin Laden [9] by a radio host responded, "Of course he is dead."

- On December 26, 2001, Fox News [10], citing a Pakistan Observer story, reported that the Afghan Taliban had pronounced Bin Laden dead and buried him in an unmarked grave.

- On January 18, 2002 [11], Pakistani President Pervez Musharraf announced: "I think now, frankly, he is dead."

- On July 17, 2002 [12], the then-head of counterterrorism at the FBI, Dale Watson, told a conference of law enforcement officials that "I personally think he [Bin Laden] is probably not with us anymore."

- In October 2002, Afghan President Hamid Karzai told CNN [13] that "I would come to believe that [Bin Laden] probably is dead.

- In 2003, former Secretary of State Madeleine Albright told Fox News Channel [14] analyst Morton Kondracke she suspected Bush knew the whereabouts of Osama bin Laden and was waiting for the most politically expedient moment to announce his capture.

- In November 2005, Senator Harry Reid revealed [15] that he was told Osama may have died in the Pakistani earthquake of October that year.

- In February 2007, Professor Bruce Lawrence [16], head of Duke University's Religious Studies program, stated that the purported video and audio tapes that were being released of Bin Laden were fake and that he was probably dead.

- On November 2, 2007, former Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto [17] told Al-Jazeera's David Frost that Omar Sheikh had killed Osama Bin Laden.

- In March 2009, former US foreign intelligence officer and professor of international relations at Boston University Angelo Codevilla stated [18]: "All the evidence suggests Elvis Presley is more alive today than Osama Bin Laden."

- In May 2009, Pakistani President Asif Ali Zardari confirmed [19] that his "counterparts in the American intelligence agencies" hadn't heard anything from Bin Laden in seven years and confirmed "I don't think he's alive."

In a way, the establishment had their hand forced in having to announce the death of someone whose shadowy existence had proven very useful to them in maintaining fear and uncertainty amongst the population of America and the world.

The fact that the myth behind Al-Qaeda has been completely demolished and that the group, through a myriad of revelations, including Anwar Al-Alawki's post-9/11 visit to the Pentagon [20], is now widely known to be a US intelligence front [21], perhaps now means that Al-Qaeda will be swept under the rug and a new enemy will be invented in order to legitimize the continued US military-complex domination of the globe.
